

“The new wave of professional women’s roller derby is on the fast track to success. The current generation of blockers and jammers is anything but a sideshow. Instead, the skaters have created a new way of life— Blending athleticism and personality in unique ways that make the sport fascinating to watch. Their speed and strength are as real as their colorful nicknames and even more colorful tattoos!”

Be A Part of the Roller Derby Phenomenon!

The Women's Flat Track Derby Association (WFTDA) promotes and fosters the sport of women's flat track roller derby and facilitates the development of athletic ability, sports-womanship, and goodwill among its member leagues. Under a governing philosophy of "by the skaters, for the skaters," member leagues are primarily owned, managed, and operated by the female skaters who make up the association. The WFTDA currently comprises 76 leagues in 36 states and Canada, with new leagues accepted regularly.

League numbers are growing exponentially across the U.S. and the world, so now is the time to cement your relationship with this high-profile sport that Bob Dotson of NBC Nightly News has called "the fastest growing sport in America."

Flat-track roller derby has captured the hearts and minds of a diverse and highly-sought demographic. With disposable incomes, an insatiable appetite for life, and an intense dedication to the lifestyle of knock-your-socks off excitement, larger-than-life personalities, and the work hard/play hard ethic of extreme sports, roller derby fans and players alike are a demographic you want.

To learn more about specific sponsorship opportunities with the WFTDA and its member leagues, contact us at sponsorship@wftda.com.

"Hey, Susan B, this is what a feminist looks like: mascaraed, fishnetted, roller-skated, and tough as all fuck. Roller derby, as played by the Charm City Roller Girls, is a juiced-up, punked-up, no-faking full-contact sport that's equal parts theater, athletics, and good old time. Any fool who's mistaking what they're offering for a slap fight on wheels is going to be mighty surprised when the helmeted contestants (with psycho drag-queen names like Joy Collision and Ivana E. Chabrains) go at each other like, duh, real athletes. Let's see, you get to skate fast, hit hard, give as good as you get, wear awesome clothes and glam-rock makeup, and, maybe best of all, meet lots of other women who think and feel the same uncompromising way you do. Who wouldn't want to grow up to be a Roller Girl?"

Women's Flat Track Derby matches in HD are truly original content that can only be found on MavTV at this time. We look forward to seeing how our viewers respond to the excitement and competition between the top women's teams in the US."

The WFTDA Audience and Media Coverage

In “real life”, the skaters of the WFTDA are artists, business owners, public speakers, scientists, PR and marketing specialists, mothers, volunteers, public servants, rock stars, teachers, accountants and professors, and when they step on the track their friends and family are in the front row.

Modern roller derby appeals to people from all walks of life, from aging fans of the banked track, to 20-something hipsters who, before roller derby, wouldn't have been caught dead at a sporting event. Our demographics cut a wide swath across gender, race and age, with the average fan in the middle-to upper middle-class tax bracket and between 20-45 years old. The WFTDA member leagues provide quality, family-friendly entertainment with an edgy component that captures the imagination of fans and the media.

The 2009 WFTDA tournaments offer an outstanding opportunity for our sponsors to gain incredible visibility with skaters and fans. The roller derby resurgence receives great local and national media exposure; with multiple television and other media deals in the works, the WFTDA and its member leagues are poised to continue their exponential growth.

TV Coverage

In 2007, television saw the return of roller derby on MavTV! In a historic HD broadcast, the entirety of the WFTDA Eastern Regional and National Tournament aired as full-length games weekly on MavTV. Sponsors enjoyed visual promotion through the MavTV coverage and 30-second commercial spots. In 2008, they received further exposure through the rebroadcast of the tournaments on Women Sports TV, as well as online through the MavTV broadband player. MavTV reaches a national audience of over 12 million on cable and satellite providers, as well as an international audience in Europe, India, Australia and New Zealand.

For 2009, WFTDA is negotiating TV and other media deals for tournaments and some interleague games, which will provide sponsors with broadcast visibility, sponsorship add-ons with broadcast partners and more opportunities for brand placement alongside these high-profile female athletes.

A Roller Derby Video Game???

Recently, WFTDA announced that it has partnered exclusively with Frozen Codebase LLC, to bring modern roller derby to the world of video games. As a leading independent video game developer of original intellectual property, Frozen Codebase is excited to enter into an exclusive partnership with the WFTDA to bring flat track derby to life as a cutting edge video game. According to Norb Rozek, Vice President of Frozen Codebase, “Derby's sense of community and emergent subcultural identity reminds me a lot of the early days of the punk scene, but with appeal to a broader fanbase. Plus it's a gas!”

WFTDA WESTERN REGIONAL TOURNAMENT
OCTOBER 2-4, 2009

Bladium Sports Club, Denver CO
Denver is dubbed the “Mile High City” because its elevation is exactly one mile or 5, 280 feet above sea level. With over 300 days of sunshine a year and mild, sunny winters, the weather is hard to beat, and the city has much to offer. There is no shortage of outdoor activities in the city or within a short drive to the foothills. Depending on the weather, some of Denver’s closest ski resorts open as early as October for early season snowboarding and skiing.

When you’re ready to relax with some food and drinks, LoDo, or lower downtown Denver has over 100 options. Downtown Denver has great shopping districts at Larimer Square and on the 16th Street Pedestrian Mall. The upscale Cherry Creek North neighborhood features a mix of high end department stores with a pedestrian-friendly neighborhood of independently owned specialty boutiques and galleries. Colfax Avenue is an up and coming area with lots of quirky art galleries, jewelry stores, tattoo parlors, independent restaurants, and great people watching. The people of Denver take pride in their eco-savvy city. The free public transport busses on the 16th Street Mall are hybrids, and many Denver businesses have taken huge strides to become “green”.
